MEMORY OF WASHINGTON

The Projected Memorial of the Cincinnati Society.

MORE THAN HALF A CENTURY OF WAYTING

Practical Steps Taken Toward Erecting the Monument.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 13, 1879. few days ago that the committee of the Society of the Cincinnati, charged with selecting a design for a monument to George Washington, to be erected on George's Hill, Fairmount Park, had decided in favor of the drawings submitted by Professor Stemering, of Berlin, but that the work could not be proceeded with at present, because the estimated cost of the $155,000 were now in the fund. Diligent jn-quiry of several members of the Cincinnati's committee would seem to contradict the re-port, although the barrier of secretiveness which the men who are possessed of positive information on the subject is hard to break through. Mr. Robert dams, chairman of the committee, was found at in the Stock Exchange Building. He received the Herald correspondent gruffly, and when asked if the award had been made to Professor Siemering declared that it had not been. When further interrogated, he said that the committee had taken any action whatever. Search for George . Harris, treasurer of the fund, resulted no better It was, however, learned that the committee had visited the Park and virtually approved the site upon which the monument is to be placed.

George's Hill is the highest point in the West Park and takes its name from Mr. Jesse George, who gave the plot of ground, afterward incorporated in the Park, to the city.

THE HISTORY OF THE MONUMENT.

The inquiry resulted in eliciting the history of the ciety and of the memorial, which is to be mammoth in its proportions. Perched, as it will be seen, it will be a very conspicuous object. The his tory of the memorial is, however, worth telling:—

After the death of General Washington, its first resident, the Society of the Cincinnati, organized in 1785, composed of officers who had served in the 1785, composed of officers who had served in the war for independence, deemed it its sacred duty to immortalize his memory by crecting a monument which should be a permanent memorial to its beloved leader, companion and friend, and an evidence of its lasting affection for him. But it was not until twelve years after his death that the first positive step toward this end was taken. This was by the Pennsylvania branch of the society at its annual meeting in Philadelphia on Independence Day, 1810, when the long talked of project took proper shape by the motion of Charles Biddle to appoint a committee to procure subscriptions to a "fund for the purpose of erecting an appropriate menument to the memoryjof Washington" being unanimously approved, and $150,000 was the sum desired. The committee named for this purpose was composed of Major D. Lennox, Judge Richard Peters, Major W. Jackson, Messrs. Charles Biddle and feeling of enthusiasm worthy of the object in view among the members of the society, it did not find that liberality in subscribing to the fund which they had hoped to meet, and after nearly ten years of soliciting the fund amounted to only $3,576 59, and this insignificant sum contained amounts contributed by persons outside the pale of the society. As fast as the subscriptions were collected they were so advantageously invested by Mr. Binney, their custodian, that, with additional subscriptions received through persistent canvassing, the fund had nearly doubled itself in six years, so that in 1825 it was $6,039 44. From then till his death, at a green old age in 1875, Mr. Binney continued to manage the fund, and its history is that of a prosperous business transaction, and is itself an evidence of Mr. Binney's well known financiering shilities.

Atter Mr. Binney's death Messra. Robert Adams, dependence, deemed it its sacred duty to

THE SOCIETY OF THE CINCINATI.

At the time Sir Guy Carleton held the city of New York and after hostilities had ceased, but before a definite treaty of peace had been settled, the American forces lay encamped on the banks of the Hudson at Newburg. Then it was that the master minds of the young Republic turned naturally their thoughts to the change that would be effected in their condition at the disbandment of the army, and they forces many embarrasments and found the evils resulting from the arrearages of pay, for which no adequate provision had been made, and the temporizing policy of Congress in the matter. The murmurs of the disaffected in the camp had became so turbulent that they claimed the serious attention of the Commander-in-Chief, and by his moderate counsels the general agitation was calmed, and certain of his companions in arms, fully impressed with the danger of the doctrines that had been broached in their midst, determined to mark their disapprobation by some signal service, and hit upon an expedient that met the cordial approval of Washington. These noble and patriotic motives led the gallant officers of the American army to meet together on the banks of the Hudson, May 10, 1783, and form the Society of the Cincinnati, the link which would unite them together at periodical intervals, when around the social board old friendship could be renewed. This preliminary was made up of an officer from each regiment, together with the general officers. Baron de Steuben, major general, was called to the chair; Major General Knox and Brigadier Generals Hand and Huntington and Captain Shaw were named the committee to investigate the plans of the society and submit them at the next meeting, which took place three days afterward at the quarters of Baron de Steuben, when the institution of the Order was duly accepted on the three following fundamental articles:—

articles:

An incessant attention to preserve inviolate the exaited rights and liberties of human nature.

An unalterable determination to promote and cherish between the States union and national honor. To render permanent the cordial affection subsisting among the officers.

Besides this the society was to be eleemosynary. All the officers of the American army who had served honorably for three years were eligible to membership. The general society was divided into State societies.

and the officers of the American army who had served honorably for three years were eligible to membership. The general society was divided into State societies.

At this second meeting Generals Heath, Stouben and Knox were appointed a committee to wait on General Washington and request him to honor the society by placing his name at the hoad of its list of members. A badge was adopted, consisting of a bald eagle of enamelled gold, bearing upon its breast a medallion, with suitable devices upon it, and the motte, "Ette Perpetua." The whole pendant to a blue ribbon, eiged with white.

Thus was the society started, and the decree issued that in accord with its motto the "eagle" should descend from father to son, according to the law of primogeniture, or, in failure of issue, to collateral heirs in the due line of inheritance forever. Then it was that a hue and cry was raised against the society by those who claimed to be the most jealous of the life of the Republic, and the legislatures of many States appointed committees to inquire into the object of the Order. In every instance the report was unfavorable. Rhode Island and Massachusetts were particularly opposed to it.

Electrical Rhode Island and Massachusetts were particularly opposed to it.

Electrical Rhode Island and Massachusetts were particularly opposed to it.

The first general meeting after the disbandment of the srmy was held at the State House, Philadelphia, on May 4, 1784. On May 15 General Washington was unanimously chosen President, General Gatec Vice President, General Knox Secretary. The 4th of July was selected as the annual meeting day for the future, and since then the facetings have taken place annually on that day, and nothing worthy of note appears on the records, excepting the united effort of the fathers, then the soy, then the son's son to raise funds for the monument of which I write.

OTHER MEMORIALS.

When Lafayette was in Philadelphia, in 1824, it was decided to creet a statue of Washington in Washington in Washington of the monumen in front of Independence Hall, but it lay for a year in a corridor of the building, at the end of which time it was placed in position in Washington square. Another Washington "boom" followed in 1833 and a great procession paraded the streets. Subscriptions had by that time swelled the amount to $6,175, and at the time of Commodore Chauncey's death, he, as treasurer of the fund, had increased it by judicious investment to $10,745 66. In 1876 the fund was placed in the hands of the Pennsylvania Trust Company, and to-day amounts to $52,000. A visit to Washington square this morning resulted, after considerable search, in finding the place where all this pomp and ceremony was expended. The aid of a policeman was necessary to discover the top of the stone, it having sunk in forty-six years to the level of the ground.

THE MEADE MONUMENT.

Рипарылны, Ра., Dec. 13, 1879. Mr. James L. Clashorn, the treasurer of the Meade Memorial Committee, was found at the Commercial National Bank to-day. He had considerable to say about memorials in general and the one to General Meade in particular. He received the Herakan corre-spondent courteously, and said that the fund was gradually growing. He remarked, laughingly, that subscriptions from New York city. He displayed two checks, one for $250 and another for $100, which had just come from Boston. "But," said he, "not a dollar from New York, although there are many officers in that city who served under the gallant general. I wonder," he concluded, "if there is really any jealousy regarding Philadelphia felt in New York?" he thought it curious that he did not receive any

As another instance of the discrimination shown by the New York newspapers against Philadelphia Mr. Claghorn said:—"I see the Philadelphia papers to-day publish the line of march which the Grant procession will take, but the Hrnaun does not. Why is this?" Your correspondent assured him that it was due to the very simple fact that the Hrnaun of last Wednesday contained the official programme. In conclusion it was learned that the projected monument to General Meade will be placed in Fairmount Park and will in all respects be worthy the honored name it will commemorate.

AMUSEMENTS.

ACADEMY OF MUSIC-"MESSE SOLENNELLE," Mr. Mapleson's company lately gave so excellent endering of the "Stabat Mater" that its utter failure last evening in an attempt to sing Rossini's famous "Messe Solennelle" was as disappointing to the public as it must have been mortifying to the manager. The evening was in fact a series of disappointments and failures. It began by the non-arrival of the conductor until twenty minutes past eight, and long after the chorus and musicians were in their seats. Mile. Valleria, Miss Cary, Mme. Lablache, Signori Campanini, Galassi and Herr Behrens were announced as the principal singers. Signor Campanini did not appear at all, Signor Galassi sang through the "Laudamus" and "Gratius Agimus," and then, without excuse to the audience and for no apparent reason, left the stage and did not return during the evening; Miss Cary was indisposed and Mme. Lablache filled her place in the early part of the programme. To Miss Cary was indisposed and Mme. Lablache filled her place in the early part of the programme. To make matters still worse Signor Runcio endeavored to sing Campanini's part in the "Credo," but failed to do so correctly, and at one point almost came to a standstill. In the "Et resurrexit" he repeated the effort, with but little better result. Signor Galassi's part in the "Credo" was read acceptably by Herr Behrens. The "Domine" was cut out, owing to Signor Campanini's absence, and the mass ended with the "O salutaris hostia," because Miss Cary was not present to sing the "Agnus Dei."

From these terse statements it will readily be seen, without detailed references to the mass itself, that success could not be looked for with such sudden and unprepared for shifting of scores, and the futhless cutting of portions of the work, owing to the absence of several of the artists. Rossini's mass is not a work that can be taken up in such a hasty fashion and sung correctly or artistically, and no one knows it better than does Mr. Mapleson—unless it is his public. It is quite useless to endeavor to say pleasant things about it. It was badly done, and every singer, from the prima donna to the most unimportant member of the chorus, is aware of the fact, and the audience was equally wise as to the quality of the work of the evening. Of course there were good points in the programme; but it is better to leave the music uncriticised as it would be necessary to deal with all of the score if any part is to be montioned. The simple fact is, undoubtedly, that rehearsals were insufficient; otherwise both orchestra and chorus work would have been much better. A proof of this was seen in the "luflammatus," from the "Stabat Mater," which was sung last evening instead of the "Agnus Dei," and with which the chorus and orchestra are thoroughly familiar. It was rendered with as different an effect as though another set of musicians and singers were undertaking its interpretation and was so great an impavement on any part of the mass that t among the members of the society, it did not find that liberality in subscribing to the fund which they had hoped to meet, and after nearly ten years of soliciting the fund amounted to only $3,575 9, and the imperiod of the society. As fast as the subscriptions were collected they were so advantageously invested by Mr. Binney, their custodian, that, with additional subscriptions received through persistent canvassing, the fund had nearly doubled itself in six years, so that in 1825 it was $6,09 44. From then till his death, at a green old age in 1875, Mr. Binney continued to manage the fund, and its history is that of a prosperous business transaction, and is itself an evidence of Mr. Binney's well known financiering Milites.

"Mapleson proposes and the artist minsposes, seems to be the new reading of the old saying just now among the members of his company, and as the season is drawing to a close it is to be hoped that, in the interest of the public, the management, and their own reputations, they will so care for themselves that the fortnight that is left may witness no further announcements of "indisposition," but see a pleasant conclusion of their present labors at the Academy.

There is time yet before the close of the season for another production of this mass, and the company owes it to the public and to itself to give a rendering of it such as it is well casable of presenting. This famous posthumous work of Rossini is one that should be of great interest to every admirer of his music, and Mr. Mapleson's company, when not indisposed, has in its voices the very best of material for a finished performance of this great master's composition. It is a pity that so unpleasant an impression as was produced last evening by indisposition should be allowed to remain.

BOOTH'S THEATRE-SUNDAY NIGHT CONCERT. Mile. Paola-Marie, Mile. Leroux-Bouvard, Mile Angèle, M. Capoul and M. Villano, with Mr. Alfred Pease as the piano soloist of the occasion, contributed their respective services to the farewell Sunday evening concert of Mr. Maurice Grau last evening. The programme was as follows:—Fantasic on airs from "Ernami" (Verdi), the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. C. Almeras; chansonette, "Si J'etais Demoiseile" (Piunkett), M. Vilano; cavatina from "Les Huguenots" (Meyerbeer), Mile. Gregoire; chansonette, "Taisez vous, Joseph" (Hervo), Mile. Angele; romance, from "L'Eclair" (Heisvy), M. Victor
Capoul; air, from "Robert le Diable" (Meyerbeer) Mile. Leroux-Bouvard; "Bon Jour Suzon," words by Alfred de Musset (Faure), Mile. Paola-Marie; overture, "Zampa" (Herold), the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. C. Almeras; "Le Mensonge des Champs" (Bouvard), M. Bouvard; "Ave Maria"
(Gounod), Mile. Raphael; duo, from "Traviata"
(Verdi), Mile. Leroux-Bouvard and M. Capoul; piano solo, rinapsodie No. 6 (Liszt), Mr. Alfred H. Pease;
"Les Canards Tyroliens," Mile. Paola-Marie;
"L'Echo Des Bois"—by request—(Bouvard), Mile.
Leroux-Bouvard; romance, "Rappelle Toi" (Rupes),
M. Victor Capoul; chansonette, "Mon Oscar" (Herve), Mile. Angele; march, the orchestra, under the direction of Mr. C. Almeras. From the fore going selections it will be observed that the concert was choice and intended to be worthy of a season of which it signalizes the close. Unfortunately the weather prevented the attendance of a large audience, but the latter was one that showed its appreciation of every number.

The rain storm last evening doubtless deterred hundreds who attend the Sunday concerts at the pearance, and yet the pecasion in its variety of attractions was one of the best of the season. The programme was carried out with as much fidelity and excellence as if the house had been filled to over-programme was carried out with as much fidelity and excellence as if the house had been filled to overflowing. The performers consisted of the following artists:—Miss Nellie Campbell, contralto; Miss Henricita Markstein, pianist; Miss Carrie McCollister, dramatic reader; B. C. and A. Bent, cornet soloists; Herr Carl Klippel, bass; William F. Letsch, frombone soloist; Master Franz Kaltenborn, violinist, and the Saxophone Quartet, comprising F. Wallrabe, soprano; H. Steckelberg, tenor; E. A. Lefebre, alto; W. Schultze, bass.

The selections of the evening were well salapted to please the popular ear. The saxophone quartet played an allegre de concert by C Florio, the "Swedish Wedding March," and the well known glee "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming." The Bent brothers, on the cornet, rendered the music of the prison scene in "Trovatore," and Mr. B. C. Bent a solo by J. Hartmann. Miss Henrictta Markstein, the well known planisz, repeated Gottschalk's Grand Fantasie and the Rhupsode Hongroise, receiving for the latter a well deserved recall. This young lady shows the result in her performances of much painstaking, and without being phenomenal generally affords gratification to her auditors. Two contraits solos by Miss Nellie Campbell, a recitation from Addaide Proctor's writings by Miss Carrie McCollister, and a violin solo by Master Franz Kaltenborn (Beethoven romanza in F msjor), were also acceptably rendered, Mr. Sothern will appear to-night in his famous impersonation, "The Crushed Tragedian."

HEAVY LOSS IN LITTLE BOCK—A WOMAN BURNED TO DEATH AND TWO MEN DANGER-OUSLY INJURED.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Dec. 14, 1879.

About three o'clock this morning the two story brick livery stable occupied by J. Gillis, at the corner of Scott and Elm streets, was discovered to be in fiames, and in a few hours, despite the efforts of the Fire Department, owing to the inflammable character of the contents, was wholly destroyed. The fames communicated to a cotton compress adjoining, which was also burned.

The Gillis family were asleep on the second story, and the only practicable avenue of escape being cut off when they were aroused. Mr. Gillis and his wife dropped their children out of a window to the ground below, on Scott street. The wife was sufficeated by the smoke and, falling back, was burned. Mr. Gillis jumped from a window and was picked up in an unconscious condition from injuries about the head. It is thought that he inhaled flames and is fatally injured. Both children were severely injured.

is fatally injured. Both children were severely injured.

About ten horses and several carriages and buggles were destroyed. It is estimated that 100 bales of cotton' were burned at the compress. The stable and stock, worth about $10,000, are a total loss. The building belonged to Bishop Fitzgerald. The compress is injured to the amount of $25,000, and is insured for only $1,000. There is an insurance of $10,000 on the burned cotton.

A freman, named Brown, of the Urquehart Hose Company, was dangerously hurt by the falling down of the outer stairway of the Odd Fellows' building, which he tried to descend to escape the falling front.

A PLANING MILL BURNED.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 14, 1879. A fire last night in William J. Arnold's planing mill caused a loss of $15,000; insured. Stephen A. Dunham, a fireman, fell from the roof of the mill and was dangerously hurt.

UNDEVOTIONAL WEATHER.

CITIZENS FORCED TO SPEND SUNDAY INDOORS BY MERCILESS TORRENTS OF BAIN.

The weather having remained the same from Friday morning until Saturday night of last week hanged violently yesterday morning for the twelfth time in fourteen days. Each morning of December, with two exceptions, showed entirely different weather from that of the preceding day. The change yesterday was a peculiarly unhappy one, and the gloomy Sunday was far from devotional in its influence on such unfortunates as were obliged to be outdoors. It brought forcibly to mind the saying drizzle, but the frees were heavy with rain drops, and the least breath of wind sent copious showers from the naked boughs. The clouds, as if provoked at their incapacity to rain longer, hung heavily and threateningly over the city, shutting out all the gia-iness of sunlight and shortening the day by a full hour.

It was not a cold storm, the weather predictions of "warmer and clear" weather having been half fulfilled, and the poor, who shudder at the approach of winter, were again reprieved. To the poor man a cold day means a burdensome expense for fuel, and to these at least the season has been merciful.

A MISSING PRIEST.

Provious to July of the present year the Rev. Paul Vivet was pastor of St. Magdalene's Roman Catholic Church, in the village of Miliville, N. J. Claiming that his health was becoming impaired he sought and obtained leave of absence from Bishop Corrigan, to be absent for at least three months. He stated at the time that he purposed sailing for France on the 1st of July. Since that time nothing has been seen or heard from him, nor can any evidence be found that he sailed for Europe, as he expected. Bishop Corrigan yesterday stated that the Itev. Mr. Vivet was never appointed regularly to become the pastor of St. Magdalene's Church, the filling of that position by him being a temporary arrangement, and that before he left the Rev. Mr. Duyer was appointed to succeed him, who still remains in charge of the parish. Opinions are divided as to whether his long absence is the result of voluntary exile of that he has been the victim of foul play. Provious to July of the present year the Rev.

WHAT HAS BECOME OF HER?

A rumor prevailed in Newark yesterday that young woman named Minnie Hymes, a native of Connecticut, but lately residing at No. 146 Halsey street, Newark, and who has been absent from her home since last Tuesday, had been foully dealt with. It appears that on that evening she attended a ball at Apollo Hall, given by the Buttonmakers' Asso at Apollo Hall, given by the Buttoumakers' Asso-isation. She left early in the evening, and soon after a young man who had been paying her atten-tion visited the ballroom and inquired for her. He followed in the direction she was said to have taken. Nothing has been seen of her in Newark since, and the theory is current among her acquaint-ances that she and her lover wene to New York on the night of the bell; that they quar-relled; that in a fit of jealousy he shet her and that the is now under a physician's care in the metrop-olis. Aiss Hymes is a fine, tail, handsome girl. Her triends in Newark have pisced the matter in the hand of a detective with a view to searching out

CATHOLIC COLONIZATION.

The Right Rev. John Lancaster Spalding, D. D., Bishop of Peoris, Ill., and the Right Rev. John Ireland, D. D., Coadjutor Bishop of St. Paul, Minnesch delivered a lecture last evening in St. Stephen's Roman Catholic Church in East Twenty-eighth street, near Third avenue, on the subject of Catholic colonization in the West. The church was densely crowded. Both of the prelates set forth in glowing terms the advantages of emigration to the unoccupied lands of the great Western and Northwestern portion of our country, and condemned severely the disposition on the past of foreigners to remain in the large cities of the Atlantic seaboard when they arrive in this country.

HIGHER WAGES WANTED.

The sawyers and packing box makers met yes day afternoon at their rooms, No. 160 Heater street, for the purpose of forming a benefit protective union, apart from the regular trades union. Over a union, apart from the regular trades union. Over a hundred persons were present, and expressed their wish to join the protective association.

The tailors employed by many of the Broadway stores met yesterday atternoon at No. 10 Stanton street to discuss the propriety of asking for higher pay. It was found, however, that there was not a sufficient number of members present to decide upon any measure proposed, and the meeting was accordingly adjourned.

The ship caulkers, who have been in consultation with their employers for a week past, expect to have their demand complied with to-day.

It appears that some trouble arose between the pair which Cassidy went into the other's house to settle. He was committed for trial in default of $2,000 bail.
